For 4QY2016, Jyothy Laboratories (JLL) reported a top-line growth of $11.1 \%$ yoy to ₹ 445 cr . On account of lower raw material and employee expenses as a percentage of sales, the EBITDA margin expanded by 431 bp yoy to $14.1 \%$. Interest expenses declined by $83.7 \%$ yoy to $₹ 1$ cr while the tax rate was higher at $35 \%$ vs $11.4 \%$ in 4QFY2015. On account of good top-line growth and higher operating profitability, the net profit grew by $32.0 \%$ yoy to $₹ 36 \mathrm{cr}$.
Continued focus on power brands and potential acquisitions to drive growth: JLL has a strong product portfolio post the Henkel acquisition with key brands like Henko, Margo and Pril coming under its portfolio in addition to its own successful brands like Ujala, Exo and Maxo. These power brands have been the driving factor for the company's growth. The company has relaunched some products and introduced newer products within these brands which has yielded positive results. Going forward, the company has guided for revenue target of ₹ $5,000 \mathrm{cr}$ by FY2O20 and it is open to acquisitions in order to meet the target.

Henkel may potentially re-rate the stock: Effective April 2016, Henkel has an option to purchase $26 \%$ stake in JLL (the option is valid to be exercised before $31^{\text {st }}$ March 2017). The promoters of JLL prefer the stake sale to materialize at a mutually agreeable valuation. We believe Henkel will likely choose to exercise the option, given the prospects of the Indian growth story. Our belief draws its basis from the fact that Henkel's agreement with Asian Paints for tapping the latter's distribution channel for promoting its consumer adhesives business ("Loctite") in India is some indication of Henkel's faith in the India growth story. We believe that JLL would then be able to fall back on Henkel to launch new products in the Indian market.

Outlook and valuation: We have switched over from valuing the company on standalone numbers to consolidated numbers. The CEO, Mr Raghunandan is stepping down from the leadership post but will make himself available for the company to figure out big-ticket acquisitions and actively participate in strategic planning. He will be replaced by Mr Rajnikant Sabnavis who was previously in charge of sales \& marketing in the company and has valuable industry experience with HUL. The company has laid out an aggressive revenue target of ₹ $5,000 \mathrm{cr}$ by FY2020 which would be a monitorable as the company has indicated at scouting for suitable acquisitions. We expect the company's revenue to grow at a CAGR of $11.6 \%$ over FY2016-18E to ₹2,052cr while net profit is expected to grow at a CAGR of $7.0 \%$ over the same period to ₹ 181 cr . At the current market price, the stock trades at $29.2 x$ its FY2018E earnings. We have a Neutral view on the stock.

On the operating front, the company benefitted from lower input costs which declined by 135 bp yoy to $50.0 \%$ of sales, thus resulting in gross margin expansion. Gross margins also expanded on account of change in sales mix. However, on a qoq basis, gross margins dipped by 248bp yoy. Employee expense declined by 312 bp yoy to $8.9 \%$ of sales owing to ESOP cost write backs while other expenses were flat. The Home Care segment reported a profit of ₹10cr (vs a loss of ₹0.8cr in 4QFY2015) while the EBIT for the Soaps & Detergent segment came in at ₹53cr as against ₹ 42 cr in 4QFY2015.

Exhibit 5: EBIDTA margin expands on lower RM cost

Source: Company, Angel Research

On account of a better operational performance, the EBIDTA margin expanded by 431 bp yoy to $14.1 \%$ of sales which is higher than our estimate of $12.9 \%$. The company's tax rate was higher at $35 \%$ in comparison to the past where it was availing benefits from the Henkel merger. As a result, the net profit after minority interest grew by $23.8 \%$ yoy to $₹ 36 \mathrm{cr}$ which is lower than our estimate of ₹ 38 cr .

Investment arguments

Continued focus on power brands and potential acquisition to drive growth

JLL has a strong product portfolio post Henkel's acquisition with key brands added to its portfolio like Henko, Margo and Pril in addition to its own successful brands like Ujala, Exo and Maxo. These power brands have been the driving factor for the company's growth post the acquisition. The company has relaunched some products and introduced newer products within these brands which has yielded positive results. Going forward, the company has guided for a revenue target of ₹ $5,000 \mathrm{cr}$ by FY2020 and is open to acquisitions in order to meet the target. Since the Henkel acquisition, the acquired power brands have helped the company expand its geographical presence. The non-south contribution for the company has increased to $60 \%$ from $\sim 50 \%$ in FY 2013 .

Henkel may potentially re-rate the stock

Effective April 2016, Henkel has an option to purchase $26 \%$ stake in JLL (the option is valid to be exercised before $31^{\text {st }}$ March 2017). The promoters of JLL prefer the stake sale to materialize at a mutually agreeable valuation. We believe Henkel will likely choose to exercise the option, given the prospects of the Indian growth story. Our belief draws its basis from the fact that Henkel's agreement with Asian Paints for tapping the latter's distribution channel for promoting its consumer adhesives business ("Loctite") in India is some indication of Henkel's faith in the India growth story. We believe that JLL would then be able to fall back on Henkel to launch new products in the Indian market.

With raw material prices expected to have bottomed out, we expect gross margins to witness slight contraction. Also, the company has targeted the advertisement spend to remain at current levels of $\sim 12 \%$. We expect EBITDA margin to be at $12.9 \%$ in FY2018E. The company will be amalgamating with its subsidiary JCML which will lead to JLL paying minimum alternate tax over the next two years. We expect the net profit to post a CAGR of $7.0 \%$ over FY2016-18E to ₹ 181 cr .

Outlook and valuation

We have switched over from valuing the company on standalone numbers to consolidated numbers. The CEO, Mr Raghunandan is stepping down from the leadership post but will make himself available for the company to figure out bigticket acquisitions and actively participate in strategic planning. He will be replaced by Mr Rajnikant Sabnavis as the CEO who was previously in charge of sales \& marketing in the company and has valuable industry experience with HUL. The company has laid out an aggressive revenue target of ₹5,000cr by FY2020 which would be a monitorable as the company has indicated at scouting for suitable acquisitions. We expect the company's revenue to grow at a CAGR of $11.6 \%$ over FY2016-18E to ₹2,052cr while net profit is expected to grow at a CAGR of $7.0 \%$ over the same period to $₹ 181 \mathrm{cr}$. At the current market price, the stock trades at $29.2 x$ its FY2018E earnings. We have a Neutral view on the stock.

Risk factors

Raw-material cost & economic slowdown: The company's raw material costs are exposed to fluctuations in the price of crude and rupee exchange rate, and inflationary pressure. Any substantial depreciation in the rupee, rise in the price of crude oil, inflation and slow down in overall economy may pose risk to the company's business.
